

Feel at home in the world Fair, climate march and workshop with bonus

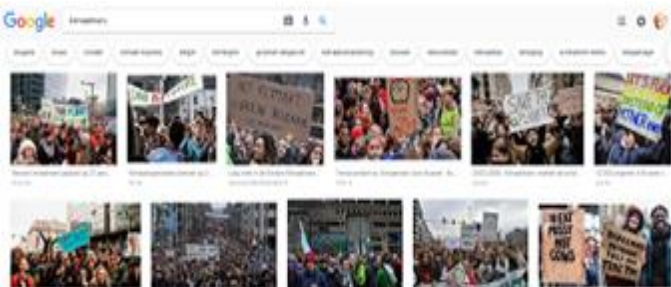

At the beginning of February, The Hague was full of activities. For example, there was the Feel at Home fair for Expats with a small 5,000 visitors. In the beautiful town hall, the offer of many organizations with their social services was enjoyed in good harmony. WFBN was present through the WSF stand that promotes its new climate workshop with an international team of experts. There, contact was also made with the Dutch branch of Youth for Climate. A few days later, they would gather more than 15,000 pupils on the Malieveld for a climate march along the Binnenhof. Worldwide, they are invited to demonstrate on 15 March for sustainable government policy. The Dutch youth has plans to resume on Thursday, March 14. WSF offers them the opportunity to promote her workshop and thus earn back their travel expenses to The Hague. They can register at worldsustainabilityfund.org/bonus. The rest then automatically shows itself:
